AutoZipper

AutoZipper is a simple Windows tool, to find large files in a given location, and zip them up into individual zip files.

AutoZipper is especially useful for zipping up database backup files on a shared disk.

AutoZipper saves you time + money, as you do not need to wade through all the files at the search location, and also you do not need to waste money on backing up redundant files.

AutoZipper will prompt you to either delete the original files, or else to move the original files to a new location of your choice.

I have used AutoZipper in a number of organisations, to zip up database backups, validate the zip file, and remove the original file. This saves disk space, and saves time too, as the process is fully automatic and does not require user interaction.

AutoZipper may also save you money, since you will have less data to backup.

About AutoZipper

AutoZipper is a free application, to find & zip up large files, into individual zip files.

I have used AutoZipper in a number of organisations, to help:

- clean up the network
- free up valuable shared disk space
- safely ZIP up large files, such as database backups, into individual zip files

Because AutoZipper zips the files into their own individual zip files, it is easy for you or other users to unzip the files later on.

Example Usage

AutoZipper is (I find) pretty easy to use.

Versioning

AutoZipper follows the normal Microsoft .NET versioning of an application. There are four digits in the version, delimited by a dot.

From time to time, minor enhancements will be made to AutoZipper, in which case a new release becomes available.

Normally, the fourth digit of the version number is incremented, for each new minor release (each new build).

Each time AutoZipper is started, it will check the internet, to see if there is a newer version available.
